RESINOL CURED ITCHING ECZEMA

Too Terrible to Describe. Tortured by It Since Childhood.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12, 1913. "Since early childhood I have suffered chronic eczema with that terrible torture eczema on the backs of my hands and fingers. I have spent hundreds of dollars on treatments and consultations and bought every known remedy, but would not be cured. My hands would crack open, at times showing the ligaments and the skin would stick to the inside of my gloves. "The itching was too terrible to describe and sleep was possible only when in an exhausted condition. This winter I had given up all hope of ever finding a cure, when I heard of Resinol and purchased some. The result was perfectly marvelous. I used three bars of Resinol Ointment, with Resinol Soap, and my hands are perfectly cured. I cannot find words strong enough to praise Resinol and what it has done for me. I wish everyone needing relief from that stubborn and torturing affliction would give Resinol a trial. I shall be pleased to answer any inquiries." (Signed) Mrs. Harry O. Jarboe, 421 E. St., N. W.

You can try Resinol free, for skin eruptions, pimples, dandruff, stubble, sores, boils or piles. Sold by practically every drug store, but for a answer to Dept. 24-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.—Advertisement.

KIDNAPING CAUSES FATHER'S DEATH

Allentown, Pa., May 21.—Relatives and friends of the late Reuben P. Steckel, a wealthy resident of this city, declare that his death was directly due to the shock experienced when his daughter, Miss Anna E. Steckel, a Vassar college graduate, was kidnaped in the presence of her father, from in front of her home by Samuel Sinclair, an ardent admirer, whose affections had not been well come. Sinclair pleaded guilty to the charge of kidnaping and is serving a six-month sentence in jail. He and his cousin drove up to the Steckel home and while the girl was conversing with her father at the front door they seized her roughly and carried her to a motor car which was driven rapidly away. The chauffeur, becoming alarmed at the conduct of the two men turned the party over to the care of a policeman. Mr. Steckel became ill immediately after the kidnaping episode and never recovered.

NATURAL HISTORY No. 1---The Hook Worm LESSONS

By Dorothy Dix

MONG the most important of the five fauna and flora is the hook worm. This valuable creature belongs to the category of domestic animals (genus hemiphysalis) and it forms a useful and indispensable adjunct to households where no maid is kept.

The hook worm is indigenous to the United States, and it flourishes most plentifully in the warm and humid regions of the South. It is a parasite of man and of other animals, and it is a common cause of disease in the tropics. The hook worm is a small, worm-like creature, and it is very difficult to see. It is a parasite of man and of other animals, and it is a common cause of disease in the tropics.

From this small and humble beginning sprang the millions of hook worms that now invade the land and make the waist places of well-dressed men and women a place of torment. The hook worm is a small, worm-like creature, and it is very difficult to see. It is a parasite of man and of other animals, and it is a common cause of disease in the tropics.

In appearance the hook worm is an elongated and tubular-looking animal with two feet, two antennae and two eyes situated near the top of its head. It has a tongue, which it shoots off with great rapidity and volubility upon occasions.

Apparently the eyesight of the hook worm is very poor, for it is unable to see a button unless it is the size of a silver dollar, and it cannot distinguish an invisible loop from a chain. Also it has a tongue, which it shoots off with great rapidity and volubility upon occasions.

Likewise the hook worm is very awkward and clumsy. It is unable to see a button unless it is the size of a silver dollar, and it cannot distinguish an invisible loop from a chain. Also it has a tongue, which it shoots off with great rapidity and volubility upon occasions. The hook worm is a small, worm-like creature, and it is very difficult to see. It is a parasite of man and of other animals, and it is a common cause of disease in the tropics.

tasks and fasten up a French confection before you could say "Scat!" Little is known of the habits of the hook worm, as, although it is a domestic animal, it absents itself from the house all day, only returning at night to be fed. Its period of greatest activity is just before dinner and theater time, when it gets busy and may be heard making weird and strange noises.

The hook worm is exclusively a woman's enemy, though, in the opinion of some, it is equally divided as to whether it is best to catch a hook worm when he is young and break him in to your own style of fastening, or to the up with a hook worm that has been thoroughly trained by some domestic woman who was addicted to lingerie shirt waists. Much is to be said in favor of each side of the question, but what there are many problems in life, and even the young hook worm who is conscientiously bent upon doing his duty sometimes gets in a bad, for in his excess of zeal he displays a skill that sets the woman who owns him to guessing.

The hook worm has a very limited vocabulary, the only two expressions that it has ever been heard to use being "Hah, Blues" and "Wah, Blues." The first is muffled and indistinguishable, but that sounds as if it started with a big, big D.

Little Bobbie and His Pa

Pa Gets Arrested by the Game Warden While He is out in the Country Rusticating.

POOR Pa, he got pinched yesterday by a game warden. It is the first time that Pa ever got arrested & he felt very bad about it. He was hanging his head all the morning at breakfast today & when he started for the little postoffice to see if there was any mail for him or ma or me, the way Pa happened to get pinched was kind of funny after all. It was a good look on him, & after he had paid his fine Ma told him that it served him right for trying to be a boy comic. It was like this:

How It Was. Pa & me started out early in the morning to catch some more trout. We went to a little stream called Horse Brook, near Bob's Hardware's farm. This is a grate morning, Bobbie, see Pa, the wind is from the southwest & there is a sort of haze in the air, almost as if it was Indian summer. The conditions are ideal for trout to bite, and Pa, I anticipate some rare sport. We started to fish, & all the forenoon Pa had all the luck. I fished in sum of the same places that he did, but the trout didn't seem to care for the worms which was my hook, or else they was afraid they wud drag a little boy like me into the water. Anyhow, they didn't bite for me at all & then Pa wud run along & throw into the same place & catch three or four nice big ones.

than you are have tried to catch fish with me, & in the end I have forest all of them to bow there heads in shame & walk slowly away. Few men indeed can hope to vie with me in luring the finny tribe from their lair, Pa said, & then he kept on bragging & catching more fish.

After a long while I got a grate big trout on my line & I was going to put it back in the water, but Pa ad wait a minnit, Bobbie, I have a plan. Put the little fish in your little basket. I will explain the plan when we get near home.

Just before we quit fishin I caught a little three inch trout. I was going to put it back in the water, but Pa ad wait a minnit, Bobbie, I have a plan. Put the little fish in your little basket. I will explain the plan when we get near home.

We we got near home Pa gave me his big basket to carry with all his big trout, & he took my little basket with the one little trout in it. We will walk into the village & to the hotel this way & I will show the little trout to your mother & you show her the big ones & tell her that you caught them. That will be a good look on her, Pa said.

I wanted him to, I told the man, but he said he wudn't. Look at all the nice big ones I caught, I sed to the man, he was a game warden. I threw all my little ones back, Pa looked at me like spunking sounds & feeds. But he didn't have the $25 with him, so he had to be arrested till I cud go to the hotel to get it.

Ma made lots of fun of Pa. She sed she wud make him a striped fishing suit.
